

The devil is crafty. If he can destroy the family he can inflict harm on generations of souls. We saw this with the fall of Israel. It began with the sins of Solomon and created a ripple effect that did not stop until there was only a remnant left. The sins of a father will be carried out unto the third and fourth generation. There are always consequences for bringing up children in a divided, sinful home. The Center for Disease Control has some very good studies on the the long-term effects of abuse and neglect. It is impossible to put a price tag on the horrible effects of sin.

The Bible is clear about instructing our children in the Lord. It's not about memorizing Bible verses. It's about teaching them discernment and how to adhere to God's word in adversity. Ephesians 6:4 says, "Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord." The time to do so is now. This isn't something to do with our kids in the future. Everything we teach the will make an imprint on their souls. We need to use wisdom in how we instruct and guide our children, every single day.
